LINCOLNIANA

[ From Mr. Newton's LINCOLN AND HERNDON ]

276. LINCOLN: Newton (J. F.) Lincoln and Herndon. Cedar Rapids, 1910. 8vo, clo., pp. 367, fine photogravure ports., t. e. g., uncut. $3.00 Exp. 20c.

The basis of this volume is a series of letters that passed between Herndon and Theodore Parker from 1854 to 1859, and here published for the first time. They throw a very strong light upon the political scenes of that stormy era and often in a startling manner, particularly as to the secret compact between Douglas and Greeley working toward the defeat of Mr. Lincoln for the Senate in 1858. The book shatters some favorite legends and places the central figures in a new and clearer light, revealing in a way hitherto not attempted the greatness of President Lincoln in the setting of his age.

While the volume is primarily devoted to the personal as well as political friendship of Lincoln and Herndon, it shows the great influence of the one upon the other as they slowly but surely worked out, in the old law office in Springfield, the solution of the great problem—a problem which was later to rend the nation. Incidentally through the text a number of interesting facts concerning the biographers of Lincoln are for the first time disclosed. The review of the Herndon biography will help to set that much misunderstood man in a truer light. The whole work abounds with unusual and in a way remarkable facts, and the reader is greeted on almost every page with some especially important data that make the book indispensable to the student of Lincoln and his time. There are two photogravures and six full page halftones through the text.

273. LINCOLN: Newton (J. F.) Abraham Lincoln. An Essay. Cedar Rapids, 1910, 16mo., bds., pp. 56. .60, post .06

An appreciation of Lincoln as a man and one of the most clever resumes of his work thus far attempted. It is not an idealization but a straightforward and highly readable sketch of a great man.

* A work of the highest value, and one which must not be confounded with the so-called "patent histories" written to order. The volumes are wholly impartial and consist of nearly 1,000 pages filled with biographical and genealogical matter of the highest value, and are illustrated with 115 full page duo-tone portraits, many of which have been procured only after the most careful research. Interspersed are reminiscences of old times and events gathered almost wholly from the early settlers, and consisting of material of unquestioned excellence, and most desirable either as local or general history. Polk county has been one of the most important in the State, and its annals are certainly worthy of preservation.

* The beautiful illustrations, of which there are a large number, give in full the Capitol Building from the first plans to the decorations, furnishings, statuary, paintings, etc. As it would take too much space to enumerate the contents of these volumes completely, only a very few we can make mention of. "The Accepted Design," by William Thornton; "Statue of Peace and War," "Statue of Washington," "Group of Busts of Supreme Court Justices," Painting of "The Declaration of Independence," "The Resignation of Washington," "The Landing of Columbus," Portraits of Lafayette, Washington, William Thornton, B. H. Latrobe, etc. In fact, no detail has been omitted.

BROWN: Life and Letters of John Brown. Ed. by F. B. Sanborn, 4th ed. with new intro., illus., fine fresh copy, 12mo, buckram $1.50 Exp .18 44

* On the publication of the first edition of Mr. Sanborn's book considerable interest was aroused because here as never before is given the true life and many inside facts relative to the career of John Brown. Three editions have been exhausted and the fourth now offered includes an entirely new preface with the reproduction of an original letter from Brown, and the reduced price from $2.50 will undoubtedly gain for the book many new readers and a much wider public.

Later books add, or may add, other facts and documents of more or less consequence but the materials for forming an estimate are here found in such a way that they cannot be questioned.

* The author, who had lived on the western frontier from boyhood, made his first journey to New Mexico in 1831. The effect of this journey was to beget in him a passion for life on the boundless prairie — a passion which he gratified by a residence of nine years in northern Mexico, as a Santa Fe Trader. During that time he crossed the Prairies eight times. His opportunities for observation of Mexico and the Mexicans were superior to those of any preceding writer, and this volume is the result of those observations.

The 22 full page plates are the finest possible and the two maps of the highest value. The work is appropriately divided into III Parts, the first two of which deal with the Life History and the Extermination respectively.

* The object of this book is to exhibit the principles and policies of the Federal Government in its treatment of the Cherokee tribe of Indians. The Cherokees, known as one of the "five civilized tribes," are probably the most intelligent Indian nation and the one farthest advanced in civilization. For years they have been at least nominally Christians. For these reasons the Government's treatment of them is peculiarly instructive as it is unobscured by many of the difficulties which tend to befog the main issue. Their government is similar to that of the United States; with its newspapers, with its schools, churches, asylums; with its leaders comparable in ability with many of the leading men of the United States. Where a tribe is grossly ignorant and degraded, it is very difficult to discover the Government's principles, or interpret its policy in its dealings with them. If then we would be enlightened in regard to the white man's treatment of the red man we could scarcely find a more illuminating illustration than the story of the Cherokees.

Those events showing him in the fullness of his strength in the crises of his course are given—his Atchison speech and his passage-at-arms with Voorhees being given in full. These stand alone in polemic oratory.

His overthrow by Populism is considered and the movement briefly analyzed. This section is closed with extracts from Mr. Ware's great poem, "The Kansas Bandit, or the Fall of Ingalls."

* An essay of exquisite quality and great charm, presenting Lincoln in the quiet majesty of his entire simplicity. Few estimates of our Great President have so surely sounded the supreme depth of his nature; few have pointed so fixedly at his love of humanity as the master key of his character, the main spring of his action. This book is a sermon on real greatness.

MCCARTY (D. G.). The Territorial Governors of the Old Northwest. 8vo, buckram, 1910, a fine fresh copy, t. e. g., uncut.

$2.00 Exp. .15 325

* A brief outline of the territorial government and administration in the Old Northwest: that undeveloped country stretching westward from the Alleghanies to the Missouri. It may be termed a study of the Governors of the various Territories, shedding light upon the characters which moulded the destiny of these future commonwealths, from the time of the American Acquisition until the admission of Wisconsin into the Union, as a State in 1848.

The ten chapters may be briefly summarized as follows: The first two deal with the early conditions in the Old Northwest and with the first attempts at government. The third and fourth chapters consist respectively of an analysis of the main provisions of the Ordinance of 1787. Chapter V, taking up the St. Clair method, is considered the model for the following chapters, which include Gov. Harrison of the Indiana Territory Gov. Edwards of the Illinois Territory, Governors Hull, Cass and Mason of the Territory of Michigan, and Governors Dodge and Doty of the Territory of Wisconsin.

The material has been gathered mainly from original sources and the book is rounded out by the inclusion of a valuable analytical index.

SPARKS (E. E., ed.). The English Settlement in the Illinois. Reprints of three Rare Tracts on the Illinois Country. 8vo, clo., uncut, t. e. g., a fine fresh copy. $2.50 Exp. .12 447 * Comprises Morris Birkbeck's Extracts from a Supplementary Letter from the Illinois (London, 1819); Richard Fowler's Letters from Lexington and the Illinois (1819), and Letters from the Illinois, 1820-21 (1822).

The controversy between William Cobbett and the writers above referred to was one of considerable moment during the early part of the 19th century, and the facts brought forth did much to bring the early west into prominence. Dr. Sparks has elucidated the text with the careful hand of the student, and the reproduction of the scarce map helps to make clear the several points of particular interest through the text. A photograph of a colony house at Albion, Illinois, further assists to an understanding of the conditions of social life. Four copies of the book are also offered on large paper at $5.00 net; and two hundred and fifty copies only of the regular edition have been printed from type.

AN
ILLUSTRATING THE PRINCIPLES OF THE LANGUAGE USED BY THE
IOWAY, OTOE AND MISSOURI
INDIANS.

PREPARED AND PRINTED BY

REV. WM. HAMILTON

AND

REV. S. M. IRVIN.

Under the direction of the Presbyterian B. F. M.

IOWAY AND SAC MISSION PRESS.

[Facsimile of No. 163a, actual size]

ing from contemporary sources that William Clarke Quantrill, the leader of the Confederate guerilla troops at the Lawrence massacre, August, 1863, was on outlaw of the Jesse James type. The incidents of the border warfare in which he and his men were leading characters are related in detail, and in spite of its evident bias it is an addition to Civil War history and a revelation of the misrule prevailing in the border States during that period. A more lenient view of Quantrill's character is taken by Major J. N. Edwards in his "Noted Guerillas." From The A. L. A. Guide.

62b. Connelley (William Elsey). THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT OF NEBRASKA TERRITORY

And the Journals of William Walker. Lincoln, 1899. 8vo, clo, pp. 423, ports., uncut, a good copy now scarce and out of print. $4, exp. 26c

*The scope of this work is indicated by the title. It is carefully edited with copious notes and contains many valuable documents, furnishing an invaluable history of the beginnings of government in the Territory. It is an excellent commentary on westward expansion and the index is thorough.

163a. Hamilton (Rev. William) and Rev. S. M. Irvin. AN IOWAY GRAMMAR, Illustrating the Principles of the language used by the Ioway, Otoe and Missouri Indians. Ioway and Sac Mission Press, 1848. 16mo, orig. green wrappers, pp. 152. $62.00

*Mr. Walter Lowrie's copy, with his name on the front fly leaf. An exceedingly scarce item seldom occurring for sale in any form. The press with which this little volume was done was at the station on Wolf Creek, Nebraska, where Mr. Hamilton remained for 15 years. Mr. Pilling in his Siouan Bibliography was aware of only six copies when he recorded the title.

169a. Miner (W. H.) THE IOWA.

*Singularly enough there has not yet been offered to the public a history, or even an exhaustive sketch of the Iowa, who may be readily termed one of the most important tribes of the great Siouan family. A direct off-spring from the Winnebago, they exist in but small number at the present time on two reservations. The above volume is primarily a reprint of an exceedingly scarce article which appeared in a newspaper known as The Indian Record, edited some thirty years since by Thomas Foster, at that time connected with the Indian Office at Washington. Mr. Foster in turn reprinted certain extracts from Schoolcraft, with annotations and additions and this material forms the basis of a somewhat extended study of the tribe. The book is illustrated by the inclusion of a map, some facsimile plates, and a portrait of Ma-Has-Kah. There are appendices that are important in connection with special features, and an index.
